Introducing Our New Director

We're excited to welcome Sonali Murarka, our new Director of Charter Schools. She is coming to us from the Silicon Schools Fund, a foundation focused on promoting high quality personalized learning in Bay Area schools, where she led their data and analytics work. In her past leadership, she served as the executive director of the New York City

Department of Education (NYC DOE) enrollment research and policy team, which works to expand access to high-quality school choices for all families in NYC. She has also previously led the NYC DOE school accountability policy team, worked on issues around the economics of education at the National Bureau of Economic Research, and conducted research at the Center for the Advanced Study of India. Sonali received her B.A. from Stanford University in Public Policy and an M.A. from the University of Pennsylvania in Applied Economics. She can be reached at sonali.murarka@ousd.org.
